Officials say yes to Bush cabinet choices

By CRAIG EDWARDS
Administration editor

While president-elect George Bush continued to unveil his White House staff Monday, several Illinois education officials were happy to hear Lauro F. Cavazos will remain secretary of the U.S. Department of Education.

Cavazos, who was appointed by President Ronald Reagan in September to replace William Bennet as the nation's top education official, formerly served as president of Texas Tech University.

Ross Hodel, deputy director of public affairs for the Illinois Board of Higher Education, described Bush's appointment as a "positive" one. "Although Cavazos hasn't been in office very long, his experience in higher education is definitely a plus for the entire higher education community," Hodel said Monday afternoon.

Reaction to Bush's appointment from Eastern's Board of Governors was also positive. BOG spokesperson, Pam Meyer, believes Cavazos will work for the same goals set by the BOG for the five universities it governs.

"It's extremely important that education has strong leadership in Washington," Meyer said, adding that "the board's concern for a quality education and the opportunity to serve a large number of minority students follows closely with Cavazos' appointment."

However, some Eastern faculty members expressed disappointment in Bush's decision to retain Cavazos. "I'm not surprised, but I am somewhat disappointed," said Gary Foster, associate sociology professor and chair of Eastern's faculty senate.

Foster said from what he has seen so far, Cavazos has not attempted to depart from Bennett's position on education. "During Bennett's term in office, there was an increasing tendency to blame education's shortcomings on education," Foster said, adding that there was no real intent or policy to provide assistance to education.

"I think we're going to see another four

Bush keeps another former Reagan aide

WASHINGTON (AP)—President-elect George Bush reached again into the Reagan cabinet Monday to retain Dick Thornburgh as attorney general and Lauro F. Cavazos as secretary of education. He also named former White House aide Richard G. Darman for "perhaps the most difficult job," budget director.

Thornburgh and Cavazos, like Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady, were late additions to the Reagan team. Bush told a news conference that "in all likelihood" those three will be the only direct holdovers.

They join James A. Baker III, the former treasury secretary whom Bush has chosen to be secretary of state, as cornerstone members of Bush's new Cabinet. The president-elect said Monday, "I will keep my commitment to bring in lots of new faces."

Bush swore in Cavazos, 61, the first Hispanic-American to serve in a Cabinet, in September as successor to William Bennett at the Department of Education. Bush had promised to appoint a Hispanic to his own Cabinet if elected.

Anniversary of JFK's death spurs memories

By DONELLE PARDEE
Campus editor

Many people who were around, and old enough to know the president was, remember when President John F. Kennedy was assassinated while driving through Dallas, Texas on Nov. 23, 1963.

Director of Housing Lou Hencken remembers being in a junior college history class. "I was a sophomore and the teacher changed what he was saying," Hencken said.

He went on to say that the instructor began talking about Abraham Lincoln — the first president to be assassinated. Before that the presidents did not have that much power," Hencken added.

The class then went on to discuss each of the assassinations of Lincoln and the next day school was dismissed, Hencken said.

John Faust, political science professor, said he had gone home for lunch. "I was teaching a political science class at Illinois Wesleyan University in Normal, Ill. I got home and the TV was on and 'As the World Turns' was on. They interrupted it with the news."

Meanwhile University Police Chief Tom Larson was on his way to work in the Thomas Hall food service. "I heard on the car radio on my way from home to Thomas Hall," Larson said, adding, "The whole time on the serving line that was all the talk going on."

Judicial Officer Keith Kohanzo remembers being in the newspaper office of Deerfield High School. He said from there he went to his last class of the day and they showed a movie on skiing, even though

Reserve budget funds shows

By TONY CAMPBELL
Staff writer

Though there is a financial risk in producing a concert at Eastern, a reserve budget helps the concert committee protect Eastern against a huge financial loss.

Diane Ducey, University Board concert coordinator, said that since no activity fees are used to pay for the cost of production, the concert committee must take a risk that there will be enough tickets sold to cover the cost.

If a concert does fall short on expected income, there is an alternative method to make up the difference.

Ducey added that the Parents' Weekend concerts usually make money and that the money is pooled into a reserve budget in case a future concert falls short. "We still have money from the Bob Hope concert a few years ago," Ducey added.

The Squeeze concert last year missed breaking even by around 100 tickets and the difference was made-up by the reserve budget.

Student Activities Director David Millberg said student fees are used for other UB events, but not for concerts.

"A common misconception is where concert money comes from," Ducey said, "we try to do research so that the concerts are close to even."

Ducey said she would prefer Eastern's current system over the use of activity fees to fund concerts.

"It gives you more of an incentive and you don't have to worry about going over a specific budget," Ducey said, "and more money can be spent on concerts if there is more emphasis on the quality of the act and the interest it will generate rather than if the cost will meet the budget."

The reserve funds are not only used for protection, but also to supply new equipment, Ducey said.

Ducey said in order to get good acts, UB must constantly upgrade the technology to keep up with the constant changes in stage production. She said someday they would like to be able to "fly the soundsystem," which means hanging the speakers from the rafters for improved sound quality.

The concert committee stays away from many hard rock acts because the speakers on the stage would produce a tremendous amount of sound for the people on the floor, but for the seats above, the stage the music would be hard to hear. "That's kind of what happened to Clair Berger," Ducey added.

For future plans, Ducey said she would like to see O'Brien Stadium used for a concert.

With the addition of lights to the stadium, Ducey sees the opportunity for concerts similar to Southern Illinois Universities' Springfest, which has several acts perform.

Ducey said it's hard to get projects like a concert at the stadium off the ground, but with the support of both the students and the administration it could be possible.

Congressman indicted in scandal

NEW YORK—Democratic Rep. Robert Garcia Monday became the second congressman to be indicted in the Wedtech corruption scandal.

A federal grand jury in Manhattan indicted Garcia, a six-term Democrat; his wife, Jane Lee Garcia; and a San Juan, Puerto Rico, lawyer, Ralph Vallone Jr., on bribe-related conspiracy charges.

The indictment was released by the office of U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani.

Garcia, 55, of the South Bronx, easily turned away primary and general election challenges to win a sixth term earlier this month.

Through his spokesman, Bill Danvers, Garcia said he was innocent and vowed to fight the charges "with all of my God-given strength."

"I am grateful that this period of trial by grand jury leaks is finally over," the statement said. He said the charges stemmed from "the preposterous allegations of Mario Moreno, one of the most notorious felons of the 20th century."

Afghan plane shot down

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan —Afghanistan's state-run radio Monday said all 27 passengers and crew members aboard an Afghan transport plane died when it was shot down by Pakistani forces over the weekend.

A Pakistani Foreign Ministry spokesman said the plane was flying several miles inside Pakistani airspace when it was attacked Saturday evening near the border town of Parachinar.

The spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity said it was not clear how many people were aboard the plane.

The Radio Kabul broadcast, monitored in Islamabad, said the An-26 plane was en route to the eastern city of Jalalabad from the Afghan capital when technical trouble developed.

The pilot put out a call for assistance but was ignored by Pakistan authorities, the radio said.

Group warns against walkers

WASHINGTON —A consumer group, advising Americans to be on the lookout for potential hazards as they shop for children's Christmas gifts, Monday cited baby walkers and crib gyms as products that cause particular concern.

The Consumer Affairs Committee of Americans for Democratic Action said in its annual toy quality and safety report that baby walkers, which can tip over or topple down stairs, are "highly dangerous" and led to 20,790 child injury reports to the Consumer Product Safety Commission in 1987.

Crib gyms have caused 674 reported injuries since 1984 and 12 deaths, the committee said. While most manufacturers now include voluntary warning labels that recommend removal of the gym toys when a baby can pull itself up to its hand and knees, many carry no such warning, it said.

Researcher says shuttles are costly

NEW YORK (AP)—The recently resigned head of the Soviet space research agency says both the Soviet and U.S. Space shuttle programs are costly mistakes that will yield few scientific benefits until the next century.

Roald Z. Sagdeev, a key science and arms control adviser to President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, said the inaugural launch of the Soviet shuttle like the 1981 flight of the first U.S. shuttle was an "outstanding technological achievement."

He said, however, that the shuttle "is technology of the 21st century, why should we pay 20th century money for it." Sagdeev, like many American scientists, fears the costly shuttles are drawing funds away from basic science, and that manned flight is unnecessary for most research.

"It went up. It came down. But it had absolutely no scientific value," was Sagdeev's blunt assessment of the 3 and 1/2 hour, unmanned orbital flight last Tuesday of the Soviet shuttle that ended the U.S. monopoly on reusable spacecraft.

"My personal view is that American experience with shuttle indicates that from point of view of cost efficiency the shuttle is in deep trouble," said Sagdeev, a physicist who followed closely the U.S. decision-making process on the shuttle. "It is much simpler and cheaper to fly a payload with any kind of expendable vehicle."

In a wide-ranging interview with The Associated Press Monday, Sagdeev, 55, also commented that he has resigned after 13 years as chief of the Soviet space

Budget debt a top priority: report

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Bush administration could reduce the nation's budget deficit by $40 billion annually by raising non-income taxes while cutting spending, former Presidents Carter and Ford said in a report released Monday.

Carter and Ford met with President-elect George Bush to present their report, entitled "American Agenda." A host of influential people, including former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and ex-Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal, contributed ideas to the report.

The ex-presidents listed the budget deficit, which is expected to reach more than $150 billion this year, as the No. 1 priority for the Bush administration.

Other proposed priorities, ranked in descending order, are national security and arms control, the savings and loan crisis,

Third World debt and international trade, the fate of children at risk and U.S. relations with allies.

The presidents said Bush's second tier of priorities—issues of compelling and intrinsic importance but not requiring immediate action—should be productivity, education; U.S. relations with the Soviet Union, Mexico, Nicaragua and Central America; the environment and drugs.

U.S. and Soviets will meet

WASHINGTON (AP) —President-elect George Bush said Monday he does not intend his meeting next month with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to turn into a bargaining session, but aides say they will go with open ears and minds.

"It will be President Reagan's meeting," Bush said. "I'll be there as vice president of the United States and I expect they'll be aware they're talking to the next president."

Bush said that "in terms of specificity, in terms of my committing a brand new administration to specifics in arms control or anything else, I'm not going to do that."

Since the second Reagan-Gorbachev meeting, in Iceland, 1986, U.S. officials have been wary of an anything-goes bargaining session.

In Iceland, Reagan and Gorbachev discussed even the elimination of all nuclear weapons, upsetting U.S. allies in Western Europe who rely on

Accidental shooting ends teens life

COLLINSVILLE, ILL (AP)—A 13-year-old boy was found shot to death in a wooded area near his home Monday, two days after a boy described as one of his best friends was killed in an apparently accidental shooting, police said.

The body of James "J.P." Herndon, was found near his home in an unincorporated area north of Collinsville by a police dog shortly after noon Monday, said Capt. Jack Fields of the Madison County sheriff's police.

Herndon had been missing since the shooting death of Jacob A. Viviano, 13, of Collinsville on Saturday afternoon at Herndon's home, Fields said.

The death of Viviano, who was shot in the head, was considered accidental, but police could not say if it was positive, he said.

"I would imagine that now this body's been found, we'll find out what happened," Fields said.

It appeared the same gun was used in both shootings, he said.

Simon tackles tough issues in town meeting

PETE SCALES

MATTOON—Coles County residents took part in a traditional town meeting Monday night, as Sen. Paul Simon discussed various domestic issues and concerns of senior citizens. Simon, who is 67, was fielding questions from the crowd of about 150 citizens, and he addressed the current topic of the $2.5 trillion national debt. Simon said a key factor toward economic recovery is the lower-interest rates. "The prime interest rate in the United States is 10 percent," Simon said. "It's 3.5 percent in Japan and in West Germany it's 4.5 percent. A one percent reduction would equal $25 billion. Some years, I agree, we need deficit, but we have gotten into the practice of deficits." One audience member raised a question regarding the funding of the beleaguered Mattoon public school system. "I see a limited increase in national funding that will be targeted, for example, to illiteracy programs," Simon said. He added Illinois may be "excessively dependent" on the real estate tax to fund the state's education programs.

The explosive situation in South Africa was also addressed by Simon as he expressed his concerns for a change in the apartheid oppression of blacks.

"The South African situation is a very, very real problem," Simon said. "You can't have five million people oppressing 26 million people."

"If there is massive violence in South Africa between blacks and whites, I'm afraid it would spill into the streets of America."

Simon predicted that no further aid from Congress would go to fund Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

"I think that's passed," Simon said. "I realize the Sandanistas aren't boy scouts, but we have to ask ourselves a fundamental question: Should we overthrow governments we don't like? We'd have our hands filled with two-thirds of the world's countries."

Condoms condemned Condom machines refused for halls

LISA ALLEN

Having a condom machine installed in Douglas Hall has recently been opposed by the director of housing. Housing Director Lou Hencken refused the idea after the Residence Hall Association approved the condom machine installation on Oct. 21. Hencken refused the idea. He said officials at the housing office do not think it was a good idea at the time because of the availability of condoms at Eastern's Health Center. He also said vandalism, a prevalent problem on campus, should be taken into consideration. Hencken said he received six letters from Douglas Hall residents who said they did not support the installation of a condom machine.

"At this point, we're just going to sit back and let the numbers compile and wait for the administration to realize their mistake," Dietrich said.

At a recent conference of RHA at the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana, Dietrich said he learned of six new schools which are installing the machines in residence halls.

"We will never progress as long as we are a BOG (Board of Governors) school," Dietrich said. "Look at Western, they're declining. I really feel that with their decision, our school will suffer."

Officials at Northern Illinois

University said that a proposal to add condom machines on the main floor of public restrooms has been implemented. Buckner, director of housing at NIU, said it appears the proposal will go through.

Deanna Barnett, who works at the housing office at Southern Illinois University in Edwardsville, said SIU is considering installing a condom machine in the bathrooms in the University Center.

She said officials at SIU are conducting a survey within the student population, which she hopes will provide positive feedback to the housing office. The survey asks questions concerning condom use and AIDS.

Anorexics share dinner and thanks

ST. LOUIS (AP)—For Thanksgiving dinner, Barbara used to fix herself a small salad while the rest of her family sat down to eat and dressing. Barbara skipped dinner altogether last year and instead took an overdose of pills. "That should have been a holiday," said Barbara, who asked that her last name be withheld. "You feel a little more comfortable sitting with people who you know have the same problem. It's a little easier to eat."

hundred others who suffer from eating disorders. The dinner is a part of the annual National Eating Disorders Week originated by their doctor, Felix Larocca, a child psychiatrist who specializes in treating disorders like anorexia and bulimia.

"It's kind of like a homecoming," said Barbara, who asked that her last name be withheld. "You feel a little more comfortable sitting with people who you know have the same problem. It's a little easier to eat."

Victims of anorexia refuse to eat because they believe themselves fat even when they're dangerously underweight, while bulimia sufferers binge and purge, eating sometimes enormous amounts of food and then throwing up.

Most who suffer from these eating disorders are young, white women, but more cases are being diagnosed among men, blacks, Asians and children.

Larocca is the founder of BASH Inc., which stands for Bulimia Anorexia Self-Help. Based in St. Louis, it is an internationally known program for people with eating disorders.

Eastern Alumnus Ives nominated for honor

Eastern alumnus Burl Ives, folk singer and actor of stage, screen and television, will be honored Tuesday by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU) as the distinguished alumnus of the year.

Ives will be honored for his contribution to the "cultural/intellectual life of the nation/world, demonstrated by his exceptional career in the entertainment field," a spokesman for AASCU said.

Ives, a student at Eastern from 1927-1930, was nominated by Eastern President Stan Rives for the honor.

"He (Ives) has done quite a bit for the culture of this country and I'm happy he's being honored—it's a wonderful reflection on the school," Rives said.

Ives is currently appearing as Walt Whitman in a one-man stage show, and is the first to be recognized for cultural contribution in the award's 16-year history.

Meanwhile in other news of interest, five students were recently awarded $750 Parents' Club Scholarships. They are: Mary Barnes, junior graphic design major, Deborah Quinn, junior french major, Lynn Rhodes, senior elementary education major, Jeune Winchester, senior art major and Deborah Zabel, senior elementary education major.

John David Moore, assistant professor of English, presented a paper on "Kingsley's 'Classic Coldness' and Hawthorne's Gothic Guise: Twice and Thrice Told Greek Myths for Children" at the 30th Annual Meeting of the Midwest Modern Language Association, which was held in St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 3-5.

"The paper was basically about two 19th century authors' approaches to the retelling of Greek Myths," Moore said, "and how much or little remained from the original Greek text."

Barbara Sturgis-Everett, associate professor of music, and a string quartet made up of students freshman Marion Norman, juniors Denise Saunders, Zachary Pelletier and senior Laura Wilkinson, presented a program Nov. 14 to the Bennett School in Mattoon. The program was an introduction to string instruments to a group of more than 300 students, ranging from kindergarten to sixth grade.

Former student sues bars for $15,000 in damages

MUSSELL STARE

Former Eastern student and her father have filed a lawsuit asking for more than $15,000 from Page One Inc., and Roc's Lounge, Inc., Sixth St. and undisclosed amounts from city officials as a result of injuries received last November. On Nov. 20, 1987, Stacey L. Wainman is reported to have fallen through an opening in a second floor fire escape into an alley below and suffered head injuries.

Wainman said she exited to the fire escape when she felt she needed some fresh air and couldn't find her way through the crowd.

Occupancy limits allow up to 50 people on the second floor. The lawsuit contends that Page One routinely allowed in excess of 50 people to the second floor.

While on the fire escape, Wainman supposedly fell, hitting her head and slipping backwards through the opening, landing in the alley below.

Witnesses claimed Wainman had not been intoxicated at the time of the fall. The lawsuit, filed for Wainman by Scott, Beeman and Scott, P.C., of Springfield, also brings suit against Fire Chief Tom Watson, Jeffrey Finley, building and zoning officer; Richard Corbin, commissioner of public property; and the City of Charleston.

The other defendants are being sued in part for failing to issue reports to Page One owners John and Rena Ward of 47 building code violations found following a September, 1987 inspection.

The lawsuit, filed Nov. 17, states that it was the practice of Page One Tavern, Inc. to conduct or permit "TGIF" parties on the top floor of the building. The suit also reports that on the south side of the second floor an unmarked rear door led to an unmarked and unlighted fire escape with an unmarked opening in the floor large enough for an adult to fall through into the alley below.

A similar accident happened in May, 1978 involving the same platform.

A delightful poem for Thanksgiving

As school breaks for Thanksgiving Day, there are just a few more words we'd like to say.

These next five days should be plenty relaxing, and if we eat too much turkey, they'll also be plenty taxing.

Spend time with your family and time with your friends, because these five days will quickly come to an end.

Take time and enjoy the fact there are no classes, For at least five days, there won't be professors here to harass us.

From your parents, some money coax, because with the tuition increase, the price is only going up, folks.

We hope you'll be careful driving home during break, we wouldn't want to write about you winding up as road steak.

But forget about school, forget that we're here, because after finals, there may not be a next year.

We'll leave you with this, some words to remember, time has really flown since we began in September.

The semester is nearly over and finals are near, and soon we'll be approaching a brand-new year.

So enjoy Thanksgiving, and take a deep breath, because these next few weeks are the true test.

On a serious note - be thankful for what you've got, because compared to others, you've got a lot.

Quote of the day...

"So they left the goodly and pleasant city, which had been their resting place near 12 years; they knew they were pilgrims, and looked not much on those things, but lift up their eyes to the heavens, their dearest country, and quieted their spirits.

- William Bradford

Nov. 22, 1963: I wish I was there . . .

Where were you when John F. Kennedy was assassinated 25 years ago today?

The majority of us weren't even alive, but after watching the countless specials all this week on the 25th anniversary of JFK's death, I wish I was alive on Nov. 22, 1963.

I don't wish I was alive just to witness the assassination of the 35th president, but rather to get a true feel of what America felt like those four days late in November.

The TV documentary that I thought was most interesting was CBS' Thursday night, narrated by anchorman Dan Rather. That documentary showed something I had never seen before, the actual footage that covered the entirety of the Kennedy assassination.

On CBS, it was about 12:40 p.m. and a new soap opera, "As the World Turns," was broadcast in black and white. Suddenly a CBS news flash, and a scratchy, nervous voice announced something like this: "This is a news bulletin. There are reports from Dallas that President Kennedy has been shot while riding through a motorcade in downtown Dallas. I repeat, there are reports the President has been shot."

Within 30 seconds, the American media had captured everyone's immediate attention. In some cases, for 96 consecutive hours. From that moment on, CBS News stayed on the air for 56 hours and most of the American public tuned in for every second.

Within minutes, more developments.

Walter Cronkite, the CBS anchor whom America grew to know and love, came on the air.

"We have received reports from Dallas that the president is dead. I repeat, we have received reports from Dallas that President Kennedy is dead. I stress that these are preliminary reports and they are not confirmed. But those preliminary reports do indicate the President is dead."

Then, a minute later, the confirmation. At the age of 46, Kennedy had been shot by an assassin's bullet and lay dead in an emergency room at Parkland Hospital in Dallas.

Cronkite was speechless. The nation was stunned and traumatized.

On Sunday, Dan Rather, (who as a CBS cub reporter issued that bulletin from Dallas), may have put it best.

"The worst tragedy and mystery in a single day of the 20th century," Rather said, describing the Kennedy assassination.

None of us (students) will ever be able to grasp the kind of grasp on what it was like to be alive during those four November days in 1963. TV footage may give us an idea, but none of us will ever be able to truly know what our professors, our parents, our grandparents experienced that week.

I'm sure the conversation at the dinner table during Thanksgiving was not nearly as jovial as it might have been if JFK hadn't gone to Dallas that morning. If I had been alive in 1963, I would have been eating Thanksgiving dinner in front of the television set.

No single news event has created as much attention 25 years after the fact.

Walk into any bookstore today and the shelves are cluttered with JFK 25th anniversary books. Each has an especially gripping cover photo, luring the reader into another side of the story of JFK. If I could afford it, I would buy each and every one of them.

No single news event has ever captured my attention as much as the Kennedy assassination has. I wasn't even alive then. Watching that CBS footage Thursday night, I was completely mesmerized.

I don't know what else to say. On Nov. 22, 1963, three shots rung out in Dallas and it was heard across the world. And very faintly, those shots still ring across the world today.

Racism cannot be taken lightly

By Monica Copeland

University of Wisconsin-Madison officials are investigating a "slave auction" held by the Wisconsin chapter of the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity. The newspapers say five fraternity members, dressed in black Afro-style wigs and black face makeup, mimicked the Jackson Five. Another member dressed as talk show host Oprah Winfrey was beaten to the cries of "bitch, bitch." After these skits the actors/slaves were auctioned off to the highest bidder.

The fraternity's president issued a statement that said: "On Oct. 20, the current ZBT pledge class held a pledge auction to raise money for a pledge class retreat," and the skits "were not meant in a racist manner and were certainly not intended to be offensive."

I find the skits racist, offensive and an outrage.

What makes this offensive, racist and outrageous action even more outrageous is that the fraternity doesn't even recognize it as racist.

Some reports say that this fraternity, which has several Jewish members, was the victim of anti-Semitic slurs last year. I wonder if they would consider it "offensive" if a fraternity that had mostly black members raised money by having a "Gas a Jew Night" or if they had "Spanish Inquisition Night - Torture a Jew for $5."

I think they would be offended, and rightly so. As a matter of fact, all decent human beings should be offended and upset.

The Holocaust was an atrocity. Millions of human beings suffered and died. The memory of that tragic event should be respected and the pain inflicted upon Jewish people should never be forgotten, demeaned, belittled, understated or lampooned.

On the front page of the newspapers there would be stories about the virulent anti-Semitism gripping college blacks. Political leaders would call for action. Maybe there would be protests, or interracial groups to deal with anti-Semitism would be formed.

But what happened at the University of Wisconsin? When a fraternity makes fun of the pain and suffering of black Americans, where was the outcry? Where were the political leaders and the newspaper editorials?

Why is slavery not given the same importance as the Holocaust or other historical events? Does a body wrapped in black skin have less value? We dismiss slavery as something that happened in the past.

Neither black nor white Americans are able to deal with slavery. It hits us too close to home. Millions of people were stolen from their homeland and enslaved in this country. Proud people that had great civilizations when Europe was still in the Dark Ages were treated like animals.

Africa's most valuable resource was taken. Not the weak or the old, but the young and strong. The labor of young Africans was used to build up the Americas, instead of Africa.

The bodies of millions of Africans who were thrown overboard so they would not infect the cargo are on the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean. Countless numbers were lynched during and after slavery, and isolated racism continues today.

Slavery was not one of the more glorious pages of our country's history. We try to forget it. Or, in the worst case, belittle it.

History tells us if blacks could learn to be white, we wouldn't have any problems. We have to believe in a "story" because we don't know our story.

Let's take a test. When did the first Africans land in the colonies? Who was the first black man to die in the Revolutionary War? Who chopped down the cherry tree? If you got No. 3 right, you probably got an A in American history.

All Americans need to know that blacks and other minorities are part of this country too.

The first Africans landed in America June 20, 1619, in Jamestown, Va., a year before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock. Crispus Attucks, a black man, was one of the first fatalities of the Revolutionary War. Black soldiers fought against racist enemies in World War I while serving in a segregated army. Countless others have made contributions to American culture and society. Where are their names in my history book?

History tells us that our families are falling apart. Our story tells us of our strong tradition of extended families. Blacks do not have the same family structure as whites because we came out of a different experience. The segregation block separated children from their parents, men from women from their spouses. Slaves created families-play cousins, aunts, uncles - and most importantly our churches. That's how we survived, and that's because it's not "traditional" does not make it inferior, just different.

All of us need to learn and respect the history and culture of others.

When we know who we are, we'll stand up and we will not be silent when these types of racial incidents happen on our college campuses. When we know who we are we'll stand up just like Rosa Parks did and we aren't going to sit in the back of the bus anymore.

And not just black students will stand up and tell the administrators at the University of Wisconsin and elsewhere that these types of incidents will not be allowed. Concerned whites, Hispanics, Jews and others will stand up too.

And when we stand up and say we're not going to sit in the back of the bus anymore, we'll find out there are plenty of seats in front.

Smokeless tobacco real killer

Dear editor:
I was pleased when I read an article in The Daily Eastern dealing with the harmful effects of smokeless tobacco. Many students do not realize the serious the deadly results. The message is clear that it is a killer. It was well stated in a column by Kathy Doyle, "Smokeless tobacco is a time ticking in the mouths of millions of Americans." Now students have a chance to learn more information by attending the seminar stated in the article. More people on campus can finally be informed about this killer and make the right choice, not to use smokeless tobacco.

We should buy, not build

It seems as though housing is a problem at Eastern. Many people complain about Greek Row, but their complaints seem somewhat justified. My suggestion to the school is not to build, but to buy. We are spending so much money on new buildings for housing. Why not spend that money on old buildings. What I propose is that Eastern buy off-campus houses, and then turn them into school housing. This is done at many schools and it seems to work. The students are happy, they are not overcrowded, and it saves the university money. It seems that no one could lose on this deal.

K.J. Sullivan

Students ought to act like adults

Dear editor:

In the Nov. 3 issue, a columnist wrote about immaturity on campus. I wanted to thank her on a great article. What she said is absolutely true.

There are some people on this campus who do not care about other people's property. The people who are vandalizing are having fun at the expense of others. When you go to college, it is assumed that you are an adult, but when you do stupid things like vandalizing cars, you don't act like an adult.

So if you want to be treated like an adult, act like one.

Kim Witte

Immaturity not a problem here

Dear editor:

I am writing in reply to a Nov. 3 article "Immaturity running rampant on campus." The article describes various incidents which have occurred at Eastern. These incidents are in fact, acts of immaturity, especially at the college level. What else can be expected when there is a large group of young adults together?

There are always a chosen few who still act immature. I strongly feel there is no problem at Eastern. In the past, demolished cars, destructed property, and even deaths have occurred at Illinois universities. I believe Eastern is a tame school compared to others. As far as running rampant with immaturity, we are far from it.

Cary Cline

Inconsiderations plague library

Dear editor:

Using Booth Library is almost a must in the life of an Eastern student. The materials at Booth Library have both academic and leisure uses. Recently, after spending an afternoon on the third floor in the periodical room, I found that I had wasted a good portion of my time finding very few of the articles I needed for references for a speech I was writing.

The problem was not that Booth Library did not offer the articles or that they were merely checked out. Rather, the problem was that an inconsiderate individual was either too cheap or too lazy to copy the articles needed. Instead, this individual decided to tear them from the bound collections of periodicals.

That individual is not only very inconsiderate and self-centered, but obviously also lacks a great deal of respect for others who utilize the library and its services. Booth Library is open to all Eastern students as well as to the general public, and it is sad that a few individuals believe they have the right to take away the opportunity for everyone to fully use an institution which provides beneficial services to the community.

Lynne Burke

Election coverage was unbiased

Dear editor:

I am writing in regards to the article printed in the Oct. 31 edition about Democratic Congressman Terry Bruce. I want to compliment you on the way you printed the story. I feel that too many newspapers tend to lean toward one side of the issue.

You composed a very neutral article. You presented both sides to the issue in a fair manner. There are too many attacks being made on all the candidates vying for public office. Challengers are digging up any possible muck on their opponents to try to win more votes. I feel the candidates are avoiding the real issues by throwing around these accusations. I feel that you were just in printing the story, and I compliment you on the neutral position you selected.

Julie Kessler

Correction

A Nov. 17 letter to the editor was misidentified a communist guerilla organization as the Farabundo party. That organization is actually the Farabundo Marti. The Daily Eastern News regrets the error.

Student wins $75 in show

By DAWN SMITH
Staff writer

Although the 10 participants in the Residence Hall Association talent show provided a wide-range of entertainment Monday evening in the Rathskellar, only five won awards.

Freshman Joe Roque won the grand prize of $75 after he did a lip-sync to the song "Kick Your Heels Up and Shout."

Roque, who previously won the Carman Hall talent show, said, he entered the contest because of a speeding ticket he got a couple of weeks ago.

"I won't see the money, but it was worth it," Roque said. "I had a really good time."

Sophomore Stephene Maxwell won the second place prize of $50 with a dance routine.

"I really didn't expect to do this well," Maxwell said. "I got some really good experience from it."

Third place went to Matt Devitt who played the piano and harmonica at the same time and also sang the "Piano Man."

Senior John Bringaze and Freshman Doug Sievers tied for the $25 prizes.

Bringaze played "Feels So Good" on his trumpet, and Sievers sang "The Rose."

Sun-Times negotiators trying to halt strike

CHICAGO (AP)—Negotiators for the Chicago Sun-Times and its unionized editorial employees shuttled between hotel rooms Monday in a last-minute effort to avert a strike.

But both sides said they were prepared for a walkout.

"The picket-line chants are all set and ready to go," said Daniel Lehmann, the newspaper's religion writer and a union spokesman. He said picket signs and leaflets were also printed and waiting.

Sun-Times spokesman Michael Soll said management did not want a strike, but was "fully prepared to produce a paper" using company executives, non-union editors and outside writers.

Negotiators struggled to reach an agreement by 2:30 p.m. CST strike deadline imposed by Chicago Newspaper Guild Local 71, which represents 250 reporters, editors, photographers and support staff.

Soll said company negotiators were willing to meet around the clock, and he hoped an agreement could be reached at the meeting which began at 9 a.m. Monday following a weekend without a negotiating session.

Groups are meeting in the round

HELLE WILLMAN

Representatives from campus organizations met Nov. 9 for a session of the Round Table, which may sound like something straight from King Arthur, but Eastern's campus is somewhat different.

Representatives from the various organizations got together to discuss their issues and to voice their opinions on campus issues, Executive Vice President Andrea Pyle said.

Pyle, who organized this year's Round Table, said the Round Table is a new development by last year's executive president of Student Government, Trisha Nusbaum.

The Round Table gives people a chance to improve communications with other groups, and it encourages them to become involved in the activities of other campus organizations, Pyle said.

Representatives from 17 organizations attended the meeting, including representatives from the Delta Zeta sorority, the Black Student Union and the Delta Tau Delta fraternity, Pyle said.

Delta Zeta representative Cindy Jacobs, who was attending the Round Table session for the first time, said she thought it was effective.

"It was definitely a worthwhile activity. I only wish we met more often," Jacobs said.

The Round Table will meet once a month because Pyle said she doesn't think meeting every week is necessary. The next meeting will be held Dec. 7 in the Arcola-Tuscola room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Mike Lowrey, Delta Tau Delta representative, said attendance wasn't great, but his fraternity would continue to attend the Round Table meetings.

Although Lowrey said the topics discussed were eventful, he added that groups should not participate just to promote their own activities, but also to better communications among all campus organizations.

"I'd like to see all campus organizations become involved in the Round Table," Lowrey said. "It's a worthwhile experience."

Pyle said she will continue to encourage all campus groups to attend the Round Table meetings. For further information call Andrea Pyle at the Student Government office at 581-5522, or stop by the Student Activities Office, room 201, University Union.

Music recital pleases crowd

By DEBORAH FORCE
Staff writer

Sunday's faculty recital seemed to be enjoyed by all who attended.

Congratulations are in order for Dan Goble who played the soprano, alto and tenor saxophones to a gathering of about 45 pleased people.

Goble was accompanied on the keyboards by Karen Larvick Sanders and Mark Maegdlin, who accentuated the dreamlike performance of Goble's saxophone.

The performance had a dreamlike quality rich with singularity of purpose. That purpose was to highlight Goble's magnificent ability.

The beautiful sound of the saxophone and piano seemed to remove the audience from the auditorium—the level of musicianship here was high.

Goble and his accompanists played six diverse sets.

The pieces were chosen from a collection of Goble's favorite music, he said. Goble said most of the songs had been rehearsed for about a month, except for two which had been played before.

The premier performance written by Paul Hayden, was only practiced for three weeks prior to the recital.

The arrangement of the Concerto, BWV 1041 by J.S. Bach was a highlight of the concert—it was different from the others in that a softer, more delicate sound seemed to illuminate the audience's minds.

The recital was a delight and a break from the cold reality of school and the dreadful anticipation of upcoming exams.

The next performance by the music department will be the graduate recital at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 29 in Dvorak Hall.

Housing office move is complete

HELLE PARDEE

Students living in the residence halls no longer be able to find the housing office in the Student Services building.

Director of Housing Lou Hencken said the housing office is officially moved to the basement of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union and will be open the first 15 minutes of the day. Hencken said things began picking up as students began coming in to fill out payment deferments.

The office began its move Nov. 11 to Nov. 12 with office furniture that could be spared such as extra chairs and some of the file cabinets. The move was resumed at 4:15 p.m. Friday and completed at 3 p.m. Saturday, he said.

"We chose to move over the weekend because it is less disruptive," Hencken said, adding the office was moved before Thanksgiving to avoid the paperwork that is currently being completed by the residence halls.

All the materials and housing surveys are at the individual halls and are returned to the housing office after Thanksgiving. Now that the move is official, the paperwork will not get lost because the office will be settled beforehand, Hencken said.

Some people may believe the move could have been made during Christmas vacation, Hencken said. However, "Christmas is the busiest time for paperwork. Summer is also a busy time for paperwork."

Hencken said the office is in a more convenient location, especially for handicapped students and the housing office's phone numbers are still the same.

Death of Eastern employee dies in accident Bush keeps

Funeral services for Alex Lovell, 19, son of longtime Eastern employee Jerold Lovell, will be held at 10:30 Tuesday at the Markwell Funeral Home in Casey.

Alex died early Saturday morning sustaining injuries when his vehicle was struck by another vehicle on Highway 49, south of Casey.

Alex Lovell has been an employee of Eastern Illinois University for more than 15 years as a building service worker with the housing office.

Alex attended Mattoon High School and worked for Goblen Oil Company.

Football was Alex's main pastime, said Brenda Hutchens, Alex's sister. "He was just a real easy-going person. Everybody liked him and he had a lot of friends," she added.

"He's a friend of everybody in Casey," said Jerold Lovell, adding that Alex loved any kind of sport, especially pool and football. He also stressed Alex's love for the outdoors and said, "He was a great outdoorsman."

Those wishing to send flowers or make a donation are asked to donate to the Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) program which is currently being organized at the Casey-Westfield High School. "We have several local businesses and townspeople involved, and we hope to get this (SADD) program going, Lovell said."

Jason J. Keller, an acquaintance of Alex's, was the driver of the other vehicle who was trying to elude the police, said Jerold Lovell.

Pennsylvania and onetime head of the Department of Justice's criminal division, replaced the embattled Edwin Meese III in August. Bush said Thornburgh's priority as the nation's chief law enforcement officer will be "combatting the scourge of drugs."

Darman, 45, was deputy White House chief of staff and then deputy treasury secretary under Baker before taking a job with an investment firm last year. He has worked in six Cabinet agencies; Defense, Justice, Commerce, State, Treasury and Health, Education and Welfare.

Bush also got some private advice Monday from former Presidents Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford, who headed a commission that has made recommendations for the next administration.

He later telephoned the man he defeated in the Nov. 8 election, Democratic Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts. Dukakis aides said the two men spoke briefly about getting together but no date was set.

"I don't want to have a lot of show business. I want to hold out my hand and say, 'Look, the campaign is behind us,'" Bush said at a brief news conference following his appointment announcements.

At the news conference, Bush rejected a General Accounting Office report that dismissed his "flexible freeze" proposal for cutting the budget deficit.

business class. "I guess the teachers) wanted to get our minds off of what had happened."

Robert Kindrick, vice president for academic affairs, said that members he was "walking through the quad of a small liberal arts college in Missouri after I met a fellow student who informed me of what happened." Kindrick added they went to the student union on Monday and watched the news on television until the end of the day. From there the students went to the halls and watched it there.

Because classes were canceled they were pretty much "glued to the TV," he said. Kindrick noted he can even remember what he was wearing that day.

Art Tate, director of University Relations, said he was working security for the communications squadron at March Air Force Base in California when the announcement was made that Kennedy was shot. Upon hearing the news, security was tightened.

While much of the country was shocked and stunned, Tate said he found it to be unbelievable, but with his training he was keyed up to be prepared for any type of contingency.

Kindrick said, "When we first heard he was shot we were alarmed, but when we later heard he died there was a great deal of sorrow. People even believed there was a conspiracy." However, with the shooting of Lee Harvey Oswald the answers to those questions are still unknown, he added.

Kohanzo agreed saying it was unfortunate that Oswald was shot because it left a lot of questions unanswered.

Larson said he felt complete shock and disbelief. He couldn't understand why anyone would shoot the president.

Despite the circumstances surrounding Kennedy's death and the suspicions of conspiracy, one thing is certain in that Kennedy had an impact on the generation of that time and people remember his death and what they were doing when the news was revealed.

to be tough challenges on Eastern's road to repeat as conference champion.

The two four-team tourneys the Lady Panthers compete in this season are the Kansas State-McCall Pattern Classic, which begins Friday, and Iowa's Amana-Hawkeye Classic on Dec. 10-11.

"The thing that makes those tournaments attractive is just the opportunity to play," Hilke said.

While this season has yet to begin, Hilke said that Eastern has run into some problems putting together the 1989-90 schedule.

"We're having a difficult time with next year," Hilke said. "It must correlate with our success."

"In trying everybody big in our area, it's become a situation where we may play a mainly away schedule."

Hilke said Eastern has approached schools such as Northern Illinois, Louisville and Kentucky.

NCAA Tournament Begins

Galanti, Sicher garner awards

By BILL LOOBY

Two Lady Panthers volleyball players received postseason laurels at the conference tournament Saturday although Eastern didn't make it to the tourney.

Gianna Galanti, a senior middle hitter, was named to the second team all-conference team.

Junior setter Donna Sicher was selected honorable mention all-conference.

Galanti was named to the second-team all-conference last year also. She finished her career leading the Lady Panthers 1988 campaign with 129 blocks, including 63 solos and 47 service aces.

The senior co-captain will leave her mark on the Eastern record book. She owns three marks on the books: Highest hitting percentage in a single year, .800 against Marquette; 108 blocks in a career with 247; 108 service aces for the Eastern career record.

Sicher amassed 1236 aces and 457 digs this season, both season records. She was second in the Gateway with 10.21 aces per game and second in digs with 18.15 per game.

Eastern finished 18-15 in Gateway play, 3-6 in Gateway play. Illinois State receives automatic bid to the NCAA tournament, winning the Gateway mament Saturday with a 3-0 over Southwest Missouri (15-7, 13-15, 15-8 and 15-1).

Mindy Struckhoff was Eastern's Gateway player of the week. Struckhoff is a middle blocker at Southwest Missouri State.

Second of the four opens Eastern's wrestling squad is for, they will be traveling the hills and through the Madison, Wis., for the Open during this break.

"Break" really doesn't apply to the wrestlers of considering that they will some rather tough competition the second week in a similar tournament to," head coach Ralph said, "The competition the same."

Last weekend's tournament featured such teams as Oklahoma and Oklahoma State, which is ranked as the best in the country.

At the tournament coming up this weekend in Wisconsin, the Panthers will be facing Big Ten powerhouses Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin. Iowa and Big Eight power Iowa State have put out nationally ranked wrestling teams each year.

The tournament is formatted much like the one last weekend in St. Louis that the Panthers attended with a few exceptions.

McCausland said: "I'll be bringing a smaller number of guys, about twelve to fourteen. Because of the quality of the tournament, there are no frosh/soph divisions, and it is only one day long."

After the tournament at St. Louis McCausland said he felt that these tournaments, which do not set up the matches by seedings, can be tougher for those who get stuck with an "unlucky draw." That's why most of his varsity wrestlers didn't fare as well as he'd hoped, he said.

McCausland said of this week's tournament in Wisconsin, "we can only hope for a little better draws."

Going into the Northern Open, the Panthers may get the services of 126-pound Craig Campbell, who is recovering from injury.

Lady Panthers open season at tourney

By DAVID LINDQUIST
Associate sports editor

Eastern's women's basketball team will attempt to open Fred Bramlage Coliseum in high style when it faces Montana in the first round of the Kansas State-McCall Pattern Classic at 6 p.m. Friday.

In their first meeting ever, the Lady Panthers and the Lady Griz will play the initial contest at Kansas State's 13,500 seat basketball arena that replaces legendary Ahearn Field House.

"Montana has excellent tradition, but is in transition after losing four starters to graduation last season," Eastern coach Barbara Hilke said.

The Lady Griz were Big Sky Conference champions last season after posting a 17-1 league mark. Montana is also ranked 36th in the same national poll that has Eastern at No. 38.

"They pose some matchup problems for us," Hilke said of the Montana squad that boasts seven players 6-0 or taller.

But Montana's best player may be its shortest starter, 5-7 junior Vicki Austin. A transfer from national powerhouse Long Beach State, Austin adds another dimension to the Lady Griz' game.

"Austin gives them a different combination," Hilke said. "She is a quick, slashing guard."

Hilke said the Lady Panthers have concentrated on conditioning in their final set of practices before the season-opener.

"We're trying to get in physical shape," Hilke said. "After playing good defense, we have to go down the floor and score. In the past, it seemed we were doing just one or the other."

If Eastern tops Montana Friday, it will face the winner of the Kansas State-Colorado State contest in the tourney's championship game 3 p.m. Saturday.

If the Lady Panthers lose, they will play in the third-place contest at 1 p.m. Saturday.

"Kansas State thinks it has the best opportunity to beat Colorado State (which beat Eastern 88-78 last season)," Hilke said. "We're in a good position because we have the opportunity to watch that game after we play."

While many four-team tournaments of this variety in men's college play feature a home school and three teams of decidedly lesser talent, Hilke said that will not be the case this weekend.

"They're trying to showcase talented teams," Hilke said. "Montana lost to Stanford by two points in the NCAA tournament last season; We were in the tournament and Colorado State beat us."

Lady Panthers update:

Eastern goes into the weekend's tournament healthy. Freshman center Geri Steele's patella (knee cap) was recently when she stepped off a curb.

Steele is eligible for redshirting since Eastern has not played a game this season, but Eastern coach Barbara Hilke said she plan to redshirt her and only does redshirt in cases of injury.

Senior guard Shelly Ethridge, who suffered a shoulder injury her freshman year, was the last Eastern player Hilke redshirted.

The Lady Panthers and Montana both received votes in Friday's USA Today Top 25 preseason poll. Eastern and the Lady Griz were both mentioned in conference previews as the teams to beat in the leagues.

The Lady Panthers will not only have the distinction of playing in Fred Bramlage Coliseum before Kansas State's women's team does, but Kansas State's men's team doesn't use the facility until it hosts Purdue Saturday night.

Construction facts about Bramlage include 3,000 gallons of paint used and 225,000 cubic yards of dirt hauled into the arena.

This is the ninth annual tournament to be hosted by Kansas State. The tournament, formerly known as the Little Apple Classic, originated in 1980 and for the third consecutive season is being sponsored by the McCall Pattern Company.

Perennial women's powerhouse Louisiana Tech won the tournament in 1985.

Ladies face rematches

Women hoopsters out for some revenge

By DAVID LINDQUIST
Associate sports editor

Hell hath no fury like Lady Panthers scorned.

To paraphrase William Congreve, Eastern's women's basketball team has a number of opportunities this season to pay back squads that have defeated the Lady Panthers in the recent past.

"This team is tough on revenge," Eastern coach Barbara Hilke said. "We play Purdue, Wake Forest and perhaps Colorado State, schools that have beaten us the last two years. We haven't backed down from those challenges."

In addition to the previous trio of non-conference foes, Eastern potentially faces a matchup with Iowa, which is currently ranked third in the nation by Women's Basketball Yearbook.

"We want to be the best we can be," Hilke said. "Rankings don't come by playing non-quality teams."

Barbara Hilke

Hilke pegged Dec. 4, when Eastern hosts Purdue, as a key date on the Lady Panthers' 1988-89 schedule.

"Purdue beat us over the floor last year," Hilke said of the Lady Panthers' season-opening 95-74 drubbing at West Lafayette, Ind.

Eastern, however, has the best of that ominous start, losing to the 40-team NCAA tournament with a 22-8 record.

"We've also added a maturity since last season," Hilke said. "We're so high on the list of this team I think they deserve a chance to prove it on the floor."

"We want them to leave thinking they have met their challenges."

After Eastern's pre-conference slate ends Dec. 4 at Bowling Green, the Lady Panthers will face plenty of challenges in an uninterrupted game Gateway schedule.

"We traditionally try to play a non-conference game, but two (in-season) tournaments added extra games," Hilke said. "Really, once you get into Gateway, you don't want to add another team."

Illinois State (20-11 last season, 14-4 in the Gateway) and Drake (15-13, 12-6) are expected to be tough opponents.

Panthers will face a tough schedule

By JAMES BETZOLD
Sports editor

Eastern has some big names on its basketball schedule this season — Iowa, Wisconsin and DePaul — but a second tier of tough non-conference competition and another season in the steadily improving Association of Mid-Continent Universities conference should make every night a challenge for the Panthers.

"If people really scrutinize it (our schedule) and know what's happening in college basketball, they'll realize we're playing an excellent schedule," Eastern coach Charlie Samuels said.

In the AMCU, where Eastern has been picked second in the conference preseason poll, the Panthers' toughest competition will come from favorite Southwest Missouri State, Illinois-Chicago and Cleveland State.

SMSU (22-7 last year), league champions each of the last two seasons, return to defend the crown with two-time preseason all-conference pick Kelby Stuckey and wily coach Charlie Spoonhour running the show.

"They've got the four kids back from last year that were solid players," Samuels said. "By the end of last year I think Stuckey was their best player."

UIC (8-20) is perhaps the most unknown entity with five transfer students who will be expected to step into game situations. That group includes former Chicago-area prep stars Tracy Dildy and Darren Guest.

The competitiveness of CSU (22-8), which is on NCAA probation and ineligible for the AMCU title, will depend on the availability of guard Ken "Mouse" McFadden. McFadden will start the season academically ineligible, but Vikings coach Kevin Mackey says McFadden will be back by January.

"It's an extremely good league," Samuels said. "I'm not sure it will be tougher this year than the past couple of years, but that's not degrading the league because it's been a very good league the past two years, as well."

But before the AMCU season begins Jan. 14, the Panthers will have to contend with a non-conference schedule that includes only two non-Division I opponents.

"I think, more than anything else, it's easier to develop a home schedule with Division I opponents," Samuels said. "It's much easier to get home-and-home ventures with Division I opponents. Obviously, that's the direction we
